

Abstract

A system and method for management for data replication in a data storage 5 environment including an architecture, software, and methodology useful for recovering from failure of software agents used for such management and which are operational in the data storage environment.